The Manhattan

Styles Have Changed and Prices Are Lower

The two most important clothes questions are answered here in our new showing of Fall Clothes, as sponsored by The House of Kuppenheimer, Clothcraft, Society Brand and a dozen other leading makers of Men's and Young Men's Clothes.

The Styles—

Suits are easier fitting; no more pinched in high waisted effects; vents are shorter and there is a tendency to get away from the military influence as expressed in men's clothes the past two or three years. You will like the new styles—they are more comfortable and better looking.

The Prices—

Last year good Suits were selling at $65.00 and $75.00 and upwards — this season we quit at $65.00 and start showing splendid values in

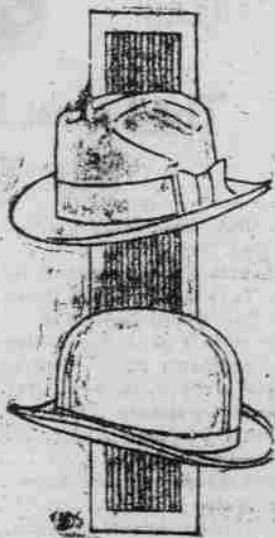

FALL SUITS

At $35, $40, $45 and $50

FALL HATS

Our Men's Hat Department offers a complete showing of new Fall Hats—Derbys, Soft Hats, Cloth Hats and Caps. All the good styles are here and values, too.

STETSON HATS, $8 to $10
VON GAL HATS, $5 to $8
TWEED HATS, SPECIAL $3.85
FALL CAPS, $2 to $3.50

WOMAN SREAMS ON WAY TO JAIL

Shouting and screaming hysterically, as she was led from the court house Friday afternoon on the way to serve a sentence in jail, Tessie Shinowska of New London made the most spectacular prisoner which this session of the criminal court has produced. Deputy Sheriff George H. Stanton and Oscar L. Main were her escort as she left the court house in tears and she rode to jail in Deputy Main's automobile.

When court came in Friday morning, State Attorney Hull said that the evidence for the prosecution was all in, and Attorney Edmund W. Perkins, who was counsel for Tessie, called her to the stand. She stoutly denied that she had stolen $1,000 from Mrs. Pauline Lavenex of New London, first having given the woman drugged wine, or that she had stolen linen from the Hotel Royal in New London. As Tessie talked rather poor English, which was not helped any by the excitement she was laboring under, she had not come far before it was decided to have her give her testimony through the Polish interpreter, M. L. Malinowski.

She claimed that the money had been given her by a man named Joe who was her lover, but she does not know where he is now.

After the arguments by Major Hall and Attorney Perkins and the charge to the jury by Judge George E. Hinman, the twelve good men and true retired to the jury room and soon came back with a verdict of guilty against Tessie on two counts.

Judge Hinman gave her a sentence of six months in jail on one count and three months on the other. She wept when she heard sentence pronounced. She has lived in this country eight years. Most of the time in Boston, where she had relatives, who lately died. She has been employed as a domestic.

Probation for Young Men

After a long conference between State Attorney Hull and a number of New London lawyers over a shooting case in New London where a young man was shot when an automobile was stopped on a road near the cemetery and the young woman in it was attacked, John Forger and John Taylor were allowed to enter a plea of not guilty. They were placed in the charge of Richard W. Mansfield, probation officer and the case against them and the other New London young men went on the continued list.

Jury Empanelled

State Attorney Hull informed, the court that he was ready to proceed with the trial of John Marshall of New London, charged with statutory burglary at the William Mitchell building in New London on July 21, 1920.

A jury for the trial was empanelled and court adjourned till next Tuesday morning when the Marshall trial will begin.

HOSPITAL CORPSMEN ARE WANTED FOR THE NAVY

Young men between the age of 17-25 to 35 are wanted as hospital apprentices in the navy. If it is your ambition at any time to choose as your profession medicine, surgery, chemistry, public health work, hygiene, sanitation, first aid, dentistry or any other of the allied branches with which one becomes familiar while serving in the hospital corps of the navy, then a tour of duty in the hospital corps of the navy would be of untold advantage. Here you may satisfy your longing for duty at sea, on foreign stations, and at stations and hospitals within the United States. The navy maintains four hospital corps schools to give instruction of members of the hospital corps. If a hospital corpsman is diligent and painstaking, and is found qualified, he will be advanced to higher ratings in the hospital corps. After having served at sea, the hospital corpsman may become eligible for a course of instruction at the advanced school located at Hampton Roads, Virginia. Here the hospital corpsman receives advanced instruction in laboratory technique, X-ray, pharmaceutical, chemical and dietetic work as well as in administration and clerical procedure. A fairly complete preliminary general education will be found; not only desirable, but also necessary, should the applicant desire continuous advancement. Those who have such an education may advance steadily to the highest rating.

For those, however, who are not well versed, every opportunity is afforded to study under the helpful guidance of the medical officers, with a view to their future advancement when qualified for the ratings they seek. Any bright young man who enters the hospital corps as a hospital apprentice, second class, may within a few months become hospital apprentice first class, and thereafter his promotion may be as rapid as the capabilities of the individual will allow.

Young men who desire further information on this subject may obtain same by calling at or writing to the Navy Recruiting Station, 50 State street, New London, Conn.

STONINGTON YOUNG MAN

HARRIS NEW LONDON GIRL

Charles E. Miller of Stonington and Miss Maine P. Rogers of New London were married in that city on Sept. 1 by Rev. A. C. Wolcott, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church.

Announcement of the wedding has just been made and came as a surprise to friends of the young people.

Mr. Miller is the son of C. W. Miller of Stonington and is assistant manager of Miller's foundry. While a student of Colgate university, he left to enter the U. S. service. In school he was prominent in athletics, having won the all-around athletic championship in 1917.

Mrs. Miller was until recently a clerk in the town clerk's office at New London, prior to which she was in the service 18 months, serving at the state pier and submarine base.

Mrs. Minnie Kelley of Pearl street and is a musician of unusual ability.

NEW LONDON'S PUMPER

WAS SENT HERE FOR TEST

The Nameaux, New London's newest auto pumper, was given a tryout Thursday afternoon at Central station in this city. The pumper, which is a Seagrave, is the same make as the auto pumper at the Central station but is of the latest model. It worked in very satisfactory manner, throwing a stream of 350 gallons a minute.

The Nameaux has not yet been accepted by the New London officials. It was driven to this city with seven or eight men in the crew. Chief Howard L. Stanton and other officials of the local fire department were present, as were the New London chief and officials of the fire department in that city.

Eight Men for Navy in Week

The following named men enlisted at the navy recruiting station, 50 State street, New London, this week and were sent to the various trade schools of their choice: Robert MacNeal, E. A. Baribeault, Howard P. Nolan, R. M. Kneis, P. M. Rymasz, James V. Pelace, Adrien P. Anclair and I. A. Beebe.

A two, three or four year enlistment in the navy includes a full outfit of clothing, medical attention, dental treatment, sports of all kinds, travel, good pay while learning a trade, food, lodging, all free to the man who enlists.

FIRESIDE SERIES FOR CENTRAL BAPTIST SERMONS
A fireside series of sermons, which are to deal especially with the well-known interests of humanity—home, pleasure, money and God—have been arranged for by Rev. A. F. Perkins for the Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church.

The first series will be on the Home, and aims sincerely and earnestly to present the teachings of Christ on this fundamental experience of human life, this rock-bed foundation of our civilization and of the Kingdom of God.

1—God and Marriage. 2—The Verities of Life. 3—The Noble Wife. 4—Are You Fit to be Married? 5—The Hanging of the Crane. 6—What You Leave to Your Children? 7—Enemies of the Home. 8—Family Religion. 9—What is the Home For? On next Sunday evening the Symphony Orchestra of New London will play.

Workmen's Compensation.
These two workmen's compensation agreements have been approved as follows:
Ambrose Sullivan, Norwich, employer, and John Zabara, 211 Yantic street, employee, strained knee ligaments, at the rate of $14.40.

U. S. Finishing Co., Norwich, employer, and Charles Barker, Jr., employee, polished system, at rate of $14.40.
